Forward

It is with a great deal of pleasure we write down these last thoughts.

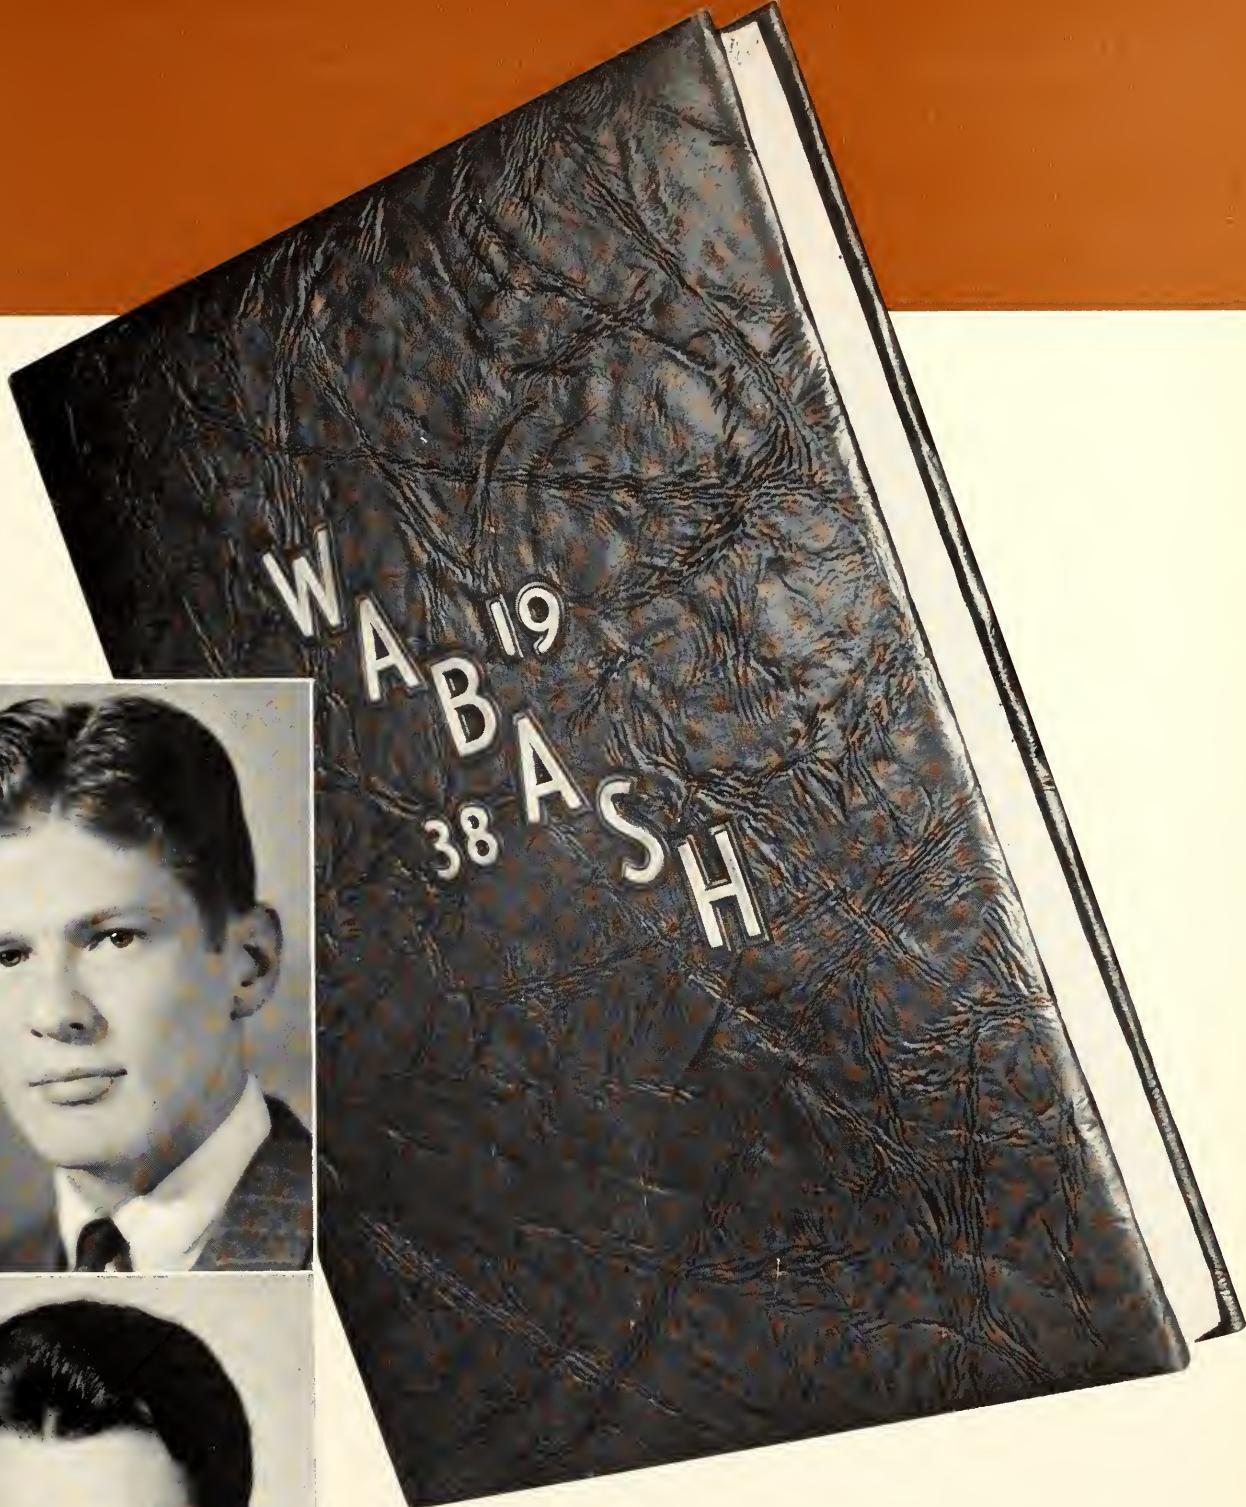

Only the editor and his staff will ever realize the joys and sorrows experienced in the welding together of the finished product. Our efforts may have been misdirected, our tears and smiles in vain, but permit us to leave this matter in your hands.

We have attempted to compile a different type of annual: cover, sections, copy, all slightly changed. Our main interest has been you, and to secure pictures which you will enjoy now and "when college days are passed".

We are very grateful for the assistance of Mr. Hirshburg and his staff, and the various faculty members for their valuable suggestions. To Mr. George McGinnis of G. R. Grubb Engravers, we speak our little piece. "George, Wabash is sincerely appreciative of the many hours you spent in working, thinking, drawing, and attempting to give Wabash a great yearbook. If it isn't, we have failed to be good organizers; if it is, you are responsible."

If the reader looks for a theme herein contained, we might say that it is . . . Wabash. We have attempted to embody a thought. I am sure the Little Giants will feel it. We are not celebrating the occasion of the hundredth graduating class, but they are an integral part of our story, Old Wabash.

We will miss our Seniors, as our story tells us that all undergraduates in the past have done, and we hope that we may add a bit to this grand story.

“THE HOME OF THE LITTLE GIANTS”

THERE'S AN OLD, OLD STORY

There's an old, old story. It took 106 years to write, and over 3,000 authors worked on its composition. Reading the story now, one cannot help but agree that not a moment was wasted, that every man gave his best. It is the story of Wabash, and it has been written by her 100 graduating classes. To them, and to us, it is the greatest story ever written, and one which will never be without appreciative readers.

It is a story which is always changing; each year, each class sees the addition of another chapter; now the 100th chapter is added to the narrative. The class of 1938 has worked hard in the preparation of their chapter. They have been mindful of the standards, the traditions set by their predecessors. They have written their story of the glories of old Wabash.

C H A P E L

They have carried on her glories, have lived up to her high ideals, and have successfully met her most stringent requirements. They are now ready to present to you, their story. Their chapter opens with them as green freshmen into whose hearts has yet to be instilled the traditions of Wabash. That was the year of green caps and paddles. Then they came as mighty sophomores; the light was beginning to break, but it was still to be a long time before the dawn.

J R . F E N C E

As juniors they began to shoulder responsibilities, and the great traditions took on a new and deeper meaning.

Finally senior year, and the dawn; and they realized what Wabash and her grand story really meant to them.

Then came their task of writing a chapter to be added to the great book. For a moment there was doubt;

would it compare with those of the past?

B A C K R O A D

We look back over that century of struggling toward an ideal. Yes, now that the chapter is completed, it bears out the dreams of the seven founders who knelt in the snow so long ago in a little settlement in Indiana called Crawfordsville and founded a college.

This, the Class of 1938, has lived its four years in college to the fullest; their record closes the first volume of the old, old story of Wabash—the rest belongs to posterity.

CONTENTS

ADMINISTRATION

CHAPTER I—The 100th Graduating Class Passes in Review.

These are the boys we have talked so much about, and they are all lined up for the "pe-rade".

CHAPTER II—Are You an Underclassman?

Juniors, sophomores and freshmen make their formal appearance. How many pictures are you in? Some of the Frosh made three.

CHAPTER III—Are You on the Team?

Small tribute is paid to the men who spend much of their time training, practicing and shaping themselves for the game. If our space is not sufficient enough to show it, let us infer it; our tribute to them.

CHAPTER IV—Are You Active on the Campus?

Extra-curricular activities are also marks of merit for many Wabash men. These organizations play an important part in the liberal arts education.

CHAPTER V—Well, you MUST be in this Group!

Fraternity men and independent men, all are here. Seven national fraternities are represented on the Wabash Campus, and the independents are welded together in the Association of Independent Men.

CHAPTER VI—Do You Remember?

No yearbook is complete without a snapshot section. We have attempted to get as many shots which would keep the thought of Wabash fresh in the minds of all those who leave. Do you think you will remember?

IN MEMORIAM

JAMES HARVEY OSBORNE

Professor James Harvey Osborne, secretary of the faculty at Wabash college and one of Crawfordsville's most prominent residents, died at his home on March 5.

Prof. Osborne was 80 years old and had been a member of the Wabash faculty since 1881, serving for thirty-five years as professor of mathematics. He retired from active teaching in 1916, and since then has served as secretary to the faculty and assistant librarian.

During his long service with the college he took a deep interest in student affairs and for many years was secretary for the Wabash chapter of Phi Beta Kappa, national honorary scholastic society, of which he was a member.

Prof. Osborne was also identified prominently with the Association of Wabash Men, and served continuously as the association's secretary since its inception.

He was a member of the Presbyterian Church; he was also a member of the Phi Kappa Psi social fraternity. Born near Carpentersville, Prof. Osborne received his education at the Waveland academy, and Wabash college. He was graduated from Wabash in 1879.

JASPER ASAPH CRAGWALL

Jasper Asaph Cragwall, Professor of Mathematics at Wabash college from 1901 until 1929, died October 29, 1937, at his home in Bean Station, Tennessee.

Professor Cragwall, affectionately known as "Craggy" to Wabash men and Crawfordsville residents, was a native of Tennessee. He was born April 23, 1867, and graduated from Vanderbilt University in 1886.

For eight years following his graduation he was associated with the Nashville, Chattanooga & St. Louis railroad as civil engineer, leaving the employ of the railroad in 1895 to take graduate work and teach mathematics until he came to Wabash College in 1901.

During his twenty-eight years' service with Wabash he endeared himself to students, alumni, and townspeople, and probably was known by more Wabash men than any member of the faculty. In 1932, when Wabash celebrated its centennial, Professor Cragwall was given the honorary degree of Doctor of Science.

Since his retirement from the faculty he had made his home in the south, spending the winter with his son, Jasper, in New Orleans, and the summer months near Tate Springs, Tennessee.

DANIEL DICKEY HAINS

Daniel Dickey Hains, class of 1895, a member of the faculty for twenty-one years and trustee for five years, died December 2, 1937, following an operation at a New York hospital.

He was born March 9, 1873, at New Albany, entered Wabash and joined the faculty immediately after graduation. In 1898 he received the Master of Arts degree from Wabash, and thereafter devoted most of his time to the instruction of Greek. He resigned in 1916 to accept an executive position with the General Box Corporation. He was elected a member of the Board of Trustees in 1919, a position which he held until 1924. For the past twelve years he has been associated with Dumont Peck, Class of 1906, in the insurance business in New York. Mr. Hains, or "Dan" as he was known to Wabash students for two decades and a half, took part in several extra-curricular activities while on the Wabash faculty. One of the most important of these activities was his presentation of Greek plays.

PRESIDENT

Louis Bertram HOPKINS

Louis Bertram Hopkins attended Dartmouth— which is the nearest institution of Wabash available in his native New England— spent several years with large manufacturing organizations, and served through the World War with the rank of major. In 1922 he became Director of Personnel at Northwestern University and in 1926 he accepted the presidency of Wabash College.

Since then he has been carrying on Wabash traditions. Under his administration at Wabash the scholastic standards have been raised and the financial position of the college strengthened. He is a good business man, a brilliant student of educational matters, a just executive, and, above all else, a good guy.

CHAPTER ONE

The men of Wabash, the class of '38, have indeed contributed well to the story, and although it is a very beautiful one, they all hate to read its closing pages.

The Seniors leave their four-year home as seniors have done for many years. Those same men one-hundred years ago received their diplomas with as heavy hearts as ours will.

The pages turn, and the story goes on and on and we hope it shall never end.

From the first graduating place, a Presbyterian church, to the new Chapel, from the first to this one-hundredth graduating class "Old Wabash" has carried on, ever growing, ever building.

SENIOR CLASS OFFICERS

The officers of this year's Senior Class are Dick Cooney, President; Victor Hough, Vice President; and Herbert Risley, Secretary. Cooney is a member of Sigma Chi, while Hough and Risley are independent men. These men represent many of the activities of the campus, and their popularity is shown by the fact that their election last fall was uncontested by anyone. Cooney plays both baseball and football; he is on the Senior Council and is a former President of the Delta Chi Chapter of Sigma Chi, here at Wabash. Hough also is a member of the Senior Council, and he is a prominent member of Omega. Risley is an active participant in Wabash debating and oratory, together with membership in the Scarlet Masque, Omega, and Glee Club. These men have cooperated with the faculty all year, and much of the successful administration of Senior Class affairs is due to their efforts.

The Senior Council is that august body of twelve men which is responsible for many Freshman fears. The Council is composed of a representative from each fraternity and five men representing the independents.

These men sponsor the finances of the various organizations and publications and regulate student conduct. The council holds meetings every two weeks and at the beginning of each year they draw up the budget for college activities.

The Yearbook is especially grateful to these men for increasing our allowance and thus offering us the opportunity to develop a larger publication.

The Class of '39 did boast of the great number of athletes in the class, but perhaps we are slightly prejudiced. The Juniors did excellent work on the gridiron and hard-wood, and at our deadline they were thinking about usurping the Seniors' places on the baseball squad.

Herb Keck speaking for his class said, "This is all true, but, of course, we don't care to brag."

This is how the boys look when they are having their picture taken . . . and the patient Hirsh is peeking.

There was no Frosh-Soph tilt this year, but after last year's fracas with Butler the Class of '40 reports it is in shape to take on the whole school.

We are of the opinion that the Sophomores are bragging . . . but isn't that word the faded color of truth?

All in all these boys are all right and do take more than their share of oral lashings.

The Class of '40 tells us that the Juniors are all wet about that athletic stuff. The Sophomores (a Soph tells us) were the basketball team, and they too have ideas about baseball.

Billy Haines speaking for the Class of '40 had this to say to our reporter: "The Sophs are the worst treated but the most courageous men at Wabash. We throw the Juniors around as we please."

To prove it he handed us this photo.

Not much to say about this scrubby-necked bunch of neophytes, but they are all good boys and when they read this they will have doffed their Freshman pots for good and will have begun to act like good Sophomores.

The boys had a great bonfire this year, and we are proud of them.

CHAPTER THREE

ARE

YOU ON THE TEAM ?

THE POWER BEHIND

The Coaches

"Pete", "Pat", and "Goldy"—the powers behind the Wabash athletic teams. These men stress sportsmanship and fair play rather than winning. They train men well, and are respected and loved by every "Little Giant" who has played on one of their teams. It is due to the ability, keen interest, and hard work of these three coaches that the "Cavemen" are always creditably represented in athletic contests.

THE PLAY

Senior Managers

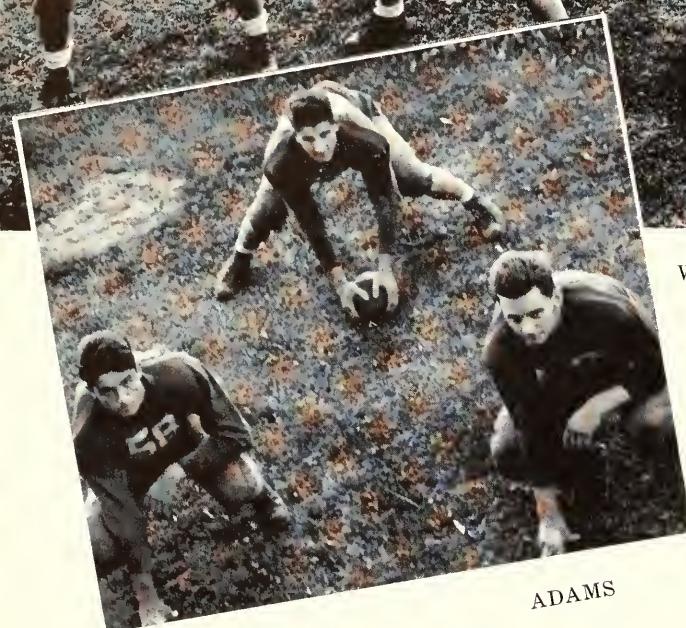

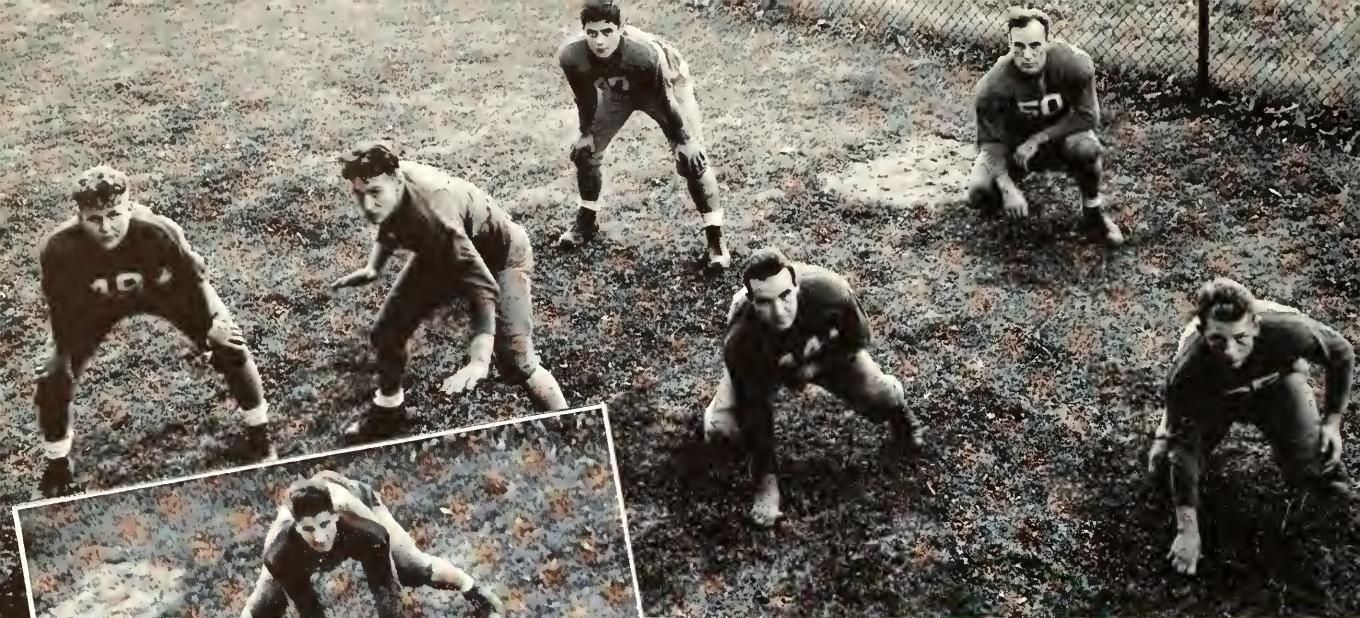

The student manager of an athletic team plays an important part in the success or failure of the team. One of his many duties is to take charge of all the team's equipment. The Seniors who served as managers during the past year are Ralph Chupp, Football; Gordon Mefford, Basketball; and Bob Edwards, Baseball. These men did very good work and are to be commended highly for it.

Cheer Leaders

The three men who so ably led the Wabash cheering this year are Bill Jackson, "Chuck" Gaines, and Bill Dearborn. Gaines established a unique record in serving as a leader for four years, and we shall all miss him in this capacity next year.

SALYER

With a loss last June of such men as Wolff, Miller, White, Moring, Hurt, Gomberg, and Fritz Heintz the Cavemen felt that their chances on the gridiron would be greatly jeopardized. They were wrong for the boys did fairly well. The great event was the tying of Butler, 0-0. The lack of reserve strength and the strenuous game played the week before with Butler were responsible for the defeat the Cavemen suffered at the hands of DePauw. Outstanding playing by Dick Cooney and George Gilbert marked the Butler game more impressively upon the minds of Wabash men who will always carry a vivid picture of that game and how valiantly their team played.

The Sophomores on this year's squad made quite a name for themselves. Dick Carr surprised the boys by showing some of the qualities of a fine open field runner. Ward Beers turned in some fine performances as quarterback as did Moose Kraus (By the by—due to the extreme negligence of the editor, these boys have no pictures in this football section. We offer our sincerest apologies for this mishap.) Heimbrodt showed ability as a real line plunger. Salyer and Hanna did excellent work on the line, always making more than their share of the tackles. Cochrane, although not a regular, showed ability in the backfield.

HANNA

MESCHUK

Coach Vaughn was blessed with several Juniors this year who did very well on the gridiron. Gilbert, playing his first year on the varsity, made end on several all-state teams. Adams turned in a good performance in his guard position. Burwell and Wahl were hurt early in the season, but they are remembered as aggressive ball players. Mike Novosel turned in another good record as an alert guard. Kobal and Wakeley were two linemen who made it hard for their opponents to gain through the forward wall. Nordman and Marciniak proved that they had real ball-carrying ability. Jack Rich made a name for himself as a tackler and ably helped to hold up his side of the line. Pack, after being injured, came back to the squad and played good football in the backfield. Reger and Meschuk, who were not regulars, served as loyal members of the squad and showed promise as linemen.

V A R S I T Y

The football squad will miss the Seniors who this year played their last games for Wabash.

Cooney played halfback, and was consistently able to make long gains through the line. He played an exceptionally good game at Butler. Gruca played three years as halfback and was usually depended on to do some good open field running. Bergquist and Tauscher were two of the best tackles the Little Giants have had for a long time. Their positions will be hard to fill next year. Rutledge finished his college football career in good style by playing some exceptional defensive games. Klokoski was valuable as a quarterback mainly because of his ability to return punts so far. Moore, Sidener, and Schleich will be missed next year for their spirit and general loyalty to the squad.

SCORES

Wabash, 0; DePauw, 0.

Wabash, 7; Butler, 38.

The Rhynies battled DePauw to a scoreless tie in a sea of mud. They ran up against a highly trained group in Butler's Freshman team but displayed that Wabash spirit.

A ten yard pass from Doug Smith to Lookabill who ran forty-seven yards netted the boys their only touchdown of the year. But what an exciting one it was!

Row 1: Ryan, Hess, Crockett, Overbeck, Wakeley, Gray, Moloney, Winslow, Ristine, Kohlstaedt.

Row 2: Clutter, Graham, Boles, Huff, Frost, Schiltges, Gelbard, Beaning, Emmert, Buehner, Fertig, McCarthy, Campbell.

The 1937 football season opened up with fairly good prospects for repeating the success of the 1936 season, as most of the men from the near-championship team of the year before were back. Bad luck in the form of numerous injuries set in from the very start, however, for in the opening game with Illinois College two men were forced out of play because of serious sprains. This jinx seemed to pursue the luckless Little Giants all during the season, for injuries to regulars fairly dotted the eight game schedule, causing the final reckoning to read three wins, three losses, and two ties.

High spot of the fall was the classic played with Butler in the Butler Bowl November 6. The Scarlet, universally rated underdogs in the battle, held a vastly superior Butler machine scoreless for the entire sixty minutes of play, threatening several times during the course of the game, the strongest bid being made in the second quarter when Wabash had the ball on the Butler six inch line, first down to go!

* * * * *

Wabash, 0; Illinois College, 13; September 25:

Disastrous was the word for the grid opener at Ingalls field with Illinois College as the Blue Boys from Jacksonville passed their way into a victory over the Cavemen in a rather slow game. The team showed plenty of pluck and fight during the entire game, though their pass defense was rather weak. Twice they stopped the visitors under the shadow of the goal posts, and it was only due to the beautiful passing attack of sophomore fullback Lambert of the Illinois club that gave the invaders the decisive edge. Wabash's Joe Gruca and Gene Wahl suffered bad sprains during the game, and the whole affair was marked by ragged and ineffective play by both teams.

* * * * *

Wabash, 12; Hanover, 14; October 2:

Though fighting hard, the Scarlet suffered its second straight defeat at the hands of Hanover, due in the most part to the weakening of the team through injuries gained in the opener the preceding Saturday. Dick Cooney was easily the outstanding star of the luckless affair, however, scoring both of Wabash's touchdowns in the second quarter on passes from Marciniaik. Captain Wilkinson of Hanover led the opposition attack which resulted in one score on a pass and the other on a penalty on Wabash. Toward the end of the game a rally on the part of the Little Giants gave the fray a little color, but it fell short, and the two successful points after touchdowns were enough for a Hilltopper victory.

* * * * *

Wabash, 19; Evansville, 0; October 10:

Still hampered by the absence of Klokoski and Burwell, Gruca and Wahl, the Little Giants nevertheless managed to romp over the Evansville eleven by a decisive margin. Showing more aggressiveness than in any previous game, Wabash brought out a smooth attack and made their three scores almost one after the other. In the third quarter two passes to Gilbert accounted for two of the touchdowns. Marciniaik added the extra point by a place kick and the game then went into the fourth frame. Midway in this quarter Johnson tossed a pass for the opposition, which Rutledge intercepted and ran back 50 yards for the third touchdown. A reserve team finished the game from this point, and though they made several threats, failed to score.

* * * * *

Wabash, 6; Earlham, 6; October 16:

The Quakers drew first blood in a slow, unevenly played game, scoring at the end of the first quarter. The score came after a long march down the field, and was climaxed by a fifteen yard pass from Hardin, Earlham's prize back. Wabash came back almost immediately, starting an offensive at the beginning of the second quarter. After receiving the kick, a series of quick passes and running plays put the ball over, the scoring play being a pass, Marciniaik to Gilbert. The attempt for the extra point was blocked. Cooney was the only consistent player in the game as far as ground gaining was concerned, making several nice runs in the course of the game. The entire second half was uneventful, with no important bid for a score made by either team.

Wabash, 25; Rose Poly, 0; October 23:

The Scarlet warriors turned in the most aggressive bit of ball playing they had all season against the engineers of Rose Poly as they fairly ran the opposition off its feet in advancing the ball 272 yards against a rather ineffective team. The scoring spree started in the second quarter in which, after scarcely two minutes of play, when Rutledge plunged over the line after passes from Cooney to Kobal and Gilbert. A pass from Carr to Gilbert was the second tally. Early in the third frame Carr romped down the field for sixty yards and the third score. Gruca plunged through center for the fourth and last touchdown. Rose Poly threatened only once, and in that attempt at scoring got only to the Wabash fourteen yard line.

* * * * *

Wabash, 20; Franklin, 6; October 30:

Back at Ingalls field again the Wabash stalwarts, with an extremely efficient aerial attack, turned back the boys from Franklin in a wide-open and beautiful exhibition of football. As in the game of the preceding Saturday, no score was made in the initial quarter, but early in the second period a thirty yard pass from Gruca to Gilbert accounted for the opening marker. Passes paved the way for both the second and third touchdowns as Pack went through the line and Cooney went around end for these two scores. The only Franklin marker came in the second stanza when, after a series of passes and plunges, Purdy went through the Little Giant line to score. They failed to make the place kick and never threatened after that.

* * * * *

Wabash, 0; Butler, 0; November 6:

A surprisingly able Wabash team held an estimated crowd of 8,000 enthralled as Dick Cooney, Wabash's "bid for All American", led his inspired cohorts to an almost-victory over a much more powerful Butler array. Butler was definitely the aggressor in the first quarter of the game, but as the Scarlet offensive began clicking, the men from Wabash held the spotlight up until the very last few seconds of the fray. Outweighed almost twenty pounds to the man, it was easy enough for the Butler team to crash through the Little Giant line again and again, but not until the closing seconds of play did they approach the goal. In the second quarter Cooney, Pack, and Klokoski advanced the ball far down the field in a magnificent drive which was halted only on the six inch line. The entire game was marked also by brilliant playing from Adams, Bergquist, Gruca, Wakeley, and Gilbert.

* * * * *

Wabash, 0; DePauw, 32; November 13:

For the Homecoming and final game a rather unsuccessful season was brought to a bitter end as a powerful Gold and Black offense ran over the Cavemen by five touchdowns. In the first few minutes of play the affair looked like a close battle, but a fumble midway in the first quarter gave DePauw its first score, and from that point on it was all in favor of the visitors. The game marked the end of a brief tenure of the Monon Bell and also the last game for nine Little Giants, Tauscher, Gruca, Bergquist, Klokoski, Cooney, Sidener, Rutledge, Schleich, and Moore.

Though faring a little worse than average in games won, the freshman squad for the 1937-38 season nevertheless showed excellent prospects for some good contributions to the varsity for next year. Of the four games this year, the team won only one, making substantial threats in each game, however.

Butler there: The Butler rhynies jumped the gun in scoring, piling up an early lead which the Wabash frosh were unable to overcome in spite of a rousing effort in the last few minutes of play. Songer was high point man with 12.

DePauw here: After a slow first half, the team edged up in the final minutes of play but couldn't quite catch the boys from Greencastle.

Butler here: With Lough ineligible, the freshmen went in against a high-scoring Butler crew which finally emerged victorious by a substantial score.

DePauw there: This game, the last of the season was by far the best played and the only winning game of the year. Tied at 35 all at the end of the regular period, the frosh rolled up seven points with surprising speed to take the game, 42-35.

BASKETBALL REVIEW

The Scarlet Netters came out on the long end of the record this year with eight wins and six losses. Wabash scored 430 points, while only 398 points were scored against her, giving the Little Giants a total edge of 32 points over their opponents. The Cavemen ended in seventh place in the Indiana Conference, having a conference record of eight wins and five losses.

Coach Pete Vaughn had plenty of new material this year. In addition to Berns, Hester, Kitzmiller, Long, veterans from last year, were Sophomore prospects James, Carr, Powers, and Rhode, and Hawkins who was a Junior and had been ineligible last year.

The squad suffered a severe loss even before the playing season opened when Jack Berns was ordered by his doctor to retire from basketball for this year.

Jack Hester, the only Senior on the squad, was elected honorary captain of the team after the season was over. His aggressive work at forward made him an outstanding performer. It will be hard to replace him next year.

Tall Bob Long turned in a record of steady play and good defensive work at his center position. His hook shots did much to keep Wabash in the lead, and Bob will be welcomed back to the team next year.

Sophomore Dick James' flashy style of play often cut through the defense to score for the Little Giants. Fortunately, he will be with us for two more years.

Dick Carr, another Sophomore, who played guard, proved himself to be the squad's best ball handler. His cool-headed playing and his long shots which are a big help in the pinches make him a strong man to return to next year's squad.

Bill Kitzmiller with his brilliant dribbling and guarding was a bulwark of the Scarlet defense. He will be able to show his talents again in his Senior year.

Manteuffel, the regular center, was injured about the middle of the season, and had to see most of the later games from the sidelines, but he played a brand of ball before his injury that should make him a distinct asset to the team next year.

Fred Rhode, playing his first year on the varsity, was converted from a forward into a center and ably replaced Manteuffel after he was injured. The Little Giants look forward to two more years of his services.

Bill Hawkins, who transferred to Wabash last year and who, for this reason was eligible this year for the first time, showed himself a valuable man on the hardwood. He earned the nickname "Hawkeye" by his ability to hook shots through the hoop. His last year should prove a profitable one for the hardwood artists.

Bill Vosloh, another Junior who was on the squad for the first time this year, made sure of a berth on next year's squad by turning in an excellent record at the forward position he shared with Hester. Bill's play was consistently good during the entire season.

The leading scorer of the squad for the entire season was Dick Carr. Bob Long, however, was close behind the leader. Hawkins literally proved himself a Caveman by committing the largest number of personal fouls. He had a very close rival for this distinction in the person of Dick James.

Bill Kitzmiller brought honor to himself and to the team by being chosen as a forward on the All-Indiana Conference Team picked by Blaine Patton; Bob Long was also given honorable mention on the same team.

Other men who gave a great deal of time and work but who didn't play as much were Sumner, Loveless, Powers, Tyler, Bechtel, Cronk, and Jack James. All of these men will be back next year and should prove valuable assets to the Wabash squad.

Gordon Mefford sacrificed a great deal of time and effort to act as Senior Basketball Manager, a position which he filled ably. His Junior assistants were Don Robertson and Ward Schaub.

Since the center jump after every basket was eliminated this year and the game was speeded up, more men were needed to replace those who tired quickly. For this reason Coach Vaughn drilled two complete varsity lineups so that he could keep a completely fresh five in reserve at all times. This plan greatly aided the Little Giants in maintaining their aggressive style of play throughout the whole game and thereby increased their chances of winning.

Since only one veteran from this year's team graduated this year we may expect to hear great things from the Scarlet Courtmen in next year's hardwood campaign.

Somewhat disheartened by the loss of Van Duzer, Prestin, Alexander, and Jack White the Little Giants feared that the loss might make a serious change in their wonderful record of last year. The regulars returning this year were: Moose Hanscom, Harry Hunt, Joe Gruca, Carl Bergquist, Bob Jones, Ed Heintz, Walt Davis, and Jack Hester.

The pitching staff had a new member this year in the tall right hander, Bill Hawkins. Jack Hester returned to the diamond in good shape and is expected to turn in some fine performances from the mound. Walt Davis, a junior, and a fine twirler, made a place for himself when he shut out the DePauw Tigers April 23. Bob Jones, the "natcherel hitter", started off the season in his old place in center field and promised some fine hitting. The lineup for the fifth game was: Marciniak, c; Hanscom, 1b; Cooney, 2b; Rhode, ss; Gruca, 3b; Heintz, lf; Jones, cf; Davis, rf.

As we are keeping the Seniors well in mind we feel that we should mention the ones on the squad.

Carl Bergquist — Omega. Berky feels that football is his game and we are really going to miss him next year, but he has been very valuable as an outfielder and pinch-hitter.

Dick Cooney — Sigma Chi. Another great football player and a real second baseman. Never weighing over 143 pounds Dick has played three years of intercollegiate baseball and football.

Joe Gruca — Omega. Joe has been a consistent man at third base for three years. Not being outdone by the others, Joe also served three years on the grid squad.

Ed Heintz — Delta Tau Delta. Ed's one great love has been baseball and he has real class in that outer garden. He also played three years of varsity baseball.

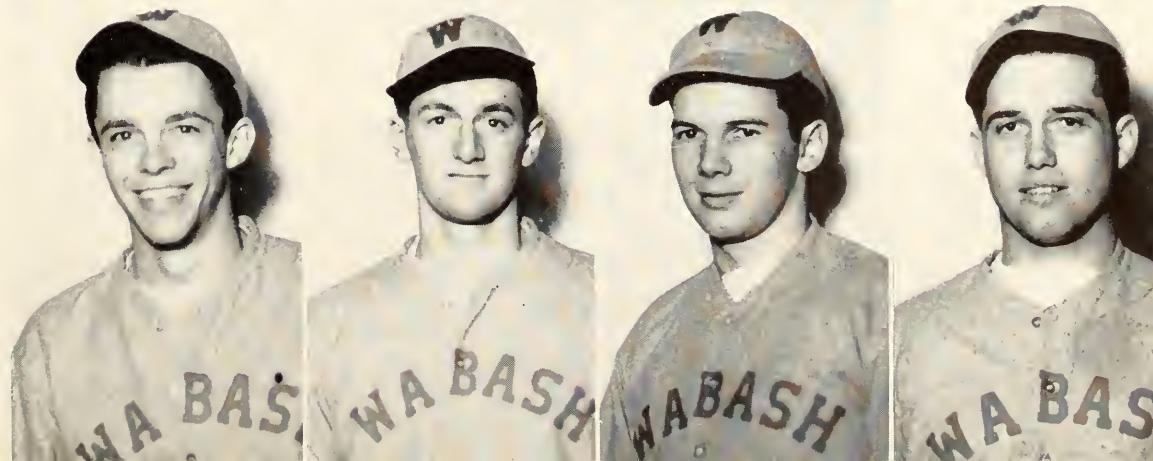

Jack Hester — Phi Delta Theta. Jack has been twirlin' that old apple for three years and has been of great service to the squad. Just a little fellow but he has thrown a fright into many of the big boys with his excellent pitching.

The yearbook photographers made their appearance at this first home game, and much to everyone's disgust they didn't get any good action shots—so they had to be satisfied with these shots. (They had to be because they couldn't match these anyway.)

At the time this book went to press the ball team had had a little bad luck with Purdue and Indiana U.

Last year's loss was difficult to cope with, but the team looks good and has a lot of zip. The boys will have to step to tie the '37 record with only two bad days to their credit.

The first home game was played with Earlham and the Little Giants tasted victory for the first time. It was a fine start and we hope it continues.

CROSS COUNTRY

Though not as fortunate as the team of the preceding year, the 1937 cross country aggregation had a fairly successful season.

Meets during the fall were with such varied teams as Indiana, Central, Loyola, Purdue, and two with Butler and DePauw each. The State meet, run in a field of snow, was also included in the schedule.

Captaining the squad were co-captains Mefford and Baron, both lettermen and veterans of the preceding year. Others on the squad were McDermott, Fulton, Fisher, and Ratcliff. None of the men was able to capture a first place in a meet, McDermott being the most consistent runner with a second to his credit.

TENNIS

Excellent prospects are in store for the 1938 tennis team, bolstered by four lettermen, Fertig, Elliot, Mefford, and Mayberry. In addition to these returning veterans, there are a number of promising recruits, including Dave Herron, winner of the intramural crown.

The fight for places on the team should be a rather warm one this year. Quite a few sophomores have answered the call of Coach Montgomery. Among them Doermann looks like good material.

Matches have been arranged tentatively with several Indiana colleges, but a definite schedule is not ready yet.

GOLF

With two lettermen gone from the team this year through graduation, prospects for the golf team are only average. The nucleus of the team seems to be returning veterans Ziegweid and Davies. Ziegweid plays a brilliant but rather erratic game while Davies handles the clubs a little more consistently. Both play a very commendable game, however. Meets have been tentatively arranged, but a definite schedule is hard to prophesy, due to the limited allotment of funds for the team.

INTRAMURALS

The first champion to be decided in the intramurals was the Betas as they eked out a first place position in touch football from the Phi Gams, who ended up in the second notch. Final standings showed the men of Beta Theta Pi with a clean record of seven wins and no losses. The Phi Gams finished up with six wins and one loss while the Sigs took third place with four wins and three defeats. The faculty did not participate.

Tennis was the second sport to be decided, though it started before touch football. After a long and hard-fought battle, the field finally narrowed down to three men, Chupp, a Kappa Sig, Bechtel, an Independent, and Herron, a Beta. Chupp had defeated Doc Gantz, Bechtel had downed Smith, and Herron had defeated Shearer of the faculty. Herron went on to win the championship. The Betas also took the doubles crown.

The volleyball championship was the only sport in which the versatile Betas did not emerge victorious. This year, as in the previous year, the Phi Gams seemed to have the certain punch needed to turn out the necessary victories in this field. This season they made it their second straight championship. The Betas had formerly monopolized this crown with four winning aggregations in a row.

Most thrilling of all intramural races was the basketball championship. Up until the last week of play the Betas were undefeated, but an inspired Sigma Chi team rose up out of the ranks to hand them the only defeat of the season, 21-20. This fast, close game changed the entire set-up of the race, putting three teams, Sigma Chi, Beta Theta Pi, and Phi Gamma Delta in a three way tie for first place. Each team had suffered only one defeat. The final showdown came when the Betas met the Sigma Chis in the all-important fray and finally triumphed, to take the title.

The ping-pong crown was taken again this year by the Betas, as they won out over the second place Sigma Chis with a 3-0 score. The contest, based on a five man team, with two different divisions playing in a sort of league arrangement, ended up at the end of the season with the teams in the following order: Beta Theta Pi, Sigma Chi, Phi Gamma Delta, and Kappa Sigma.

Remaining left to play as the yearbook goes to press are badminton, kittenball, and track, a sport started this year. Indications show the Fijis with good prospects for the former, with the other two sports doubtful.

Thus far the leaders seem to be the Betas, in undisputed possession of first place, but with a strong possibility of a change occurring before the season comes to an end.

REYNOLDS

Election to Phi Beta Kappa is the highest honor offered a man on the Wabash campus. To get this scholastic attainment one must have labored diligently during his years at Wabash, for the key means distinction not only at Wabash but also all over the country.

Phi Beta Kappa is the oldest national honorary organization in any of the institutions of higher learning of America. It was founded at William and Mary College in 1776. The Beta chapter at Wabash is the forty-second in order of establishment of the hundred and seventy-two chapters which have sprung up since then.

New men are initiated every year on class day. They are composed of not more than one-sixth of the senior class and two juniors who have remarkable records. The initiation takes place at a breakfast meeting at which the officers for the following year are elected.

Elections for 1937 were:

Seniors: Steve Helton, John Kingsbury, H. Lee McKinsey, Martin Morrison, Samuel Patton, Robert Plummer, Verne Robinson, Fred Walker, and Charles Williamson.

Juniors: Charles Gaines and Myron Reynolds.

Tau Kappa Alpha is a national honorary fraternity for excellence in forensics. Men eligible for this fraternity must have participated in two inter-collegiate decision debates or in one inter-collegiate oratorical contest. Outstanding members of the Speakers' Bureau are, with a recommendation from the speech department, also eligible for election into Tau Kappa.

The Debaters

Pi Delta Epsilon is a national honorary fraternity for men prominent in the field of journalism.

Pi Delt's President automatically becomes chairman of the Board of Publications. Members are chosen each spring.

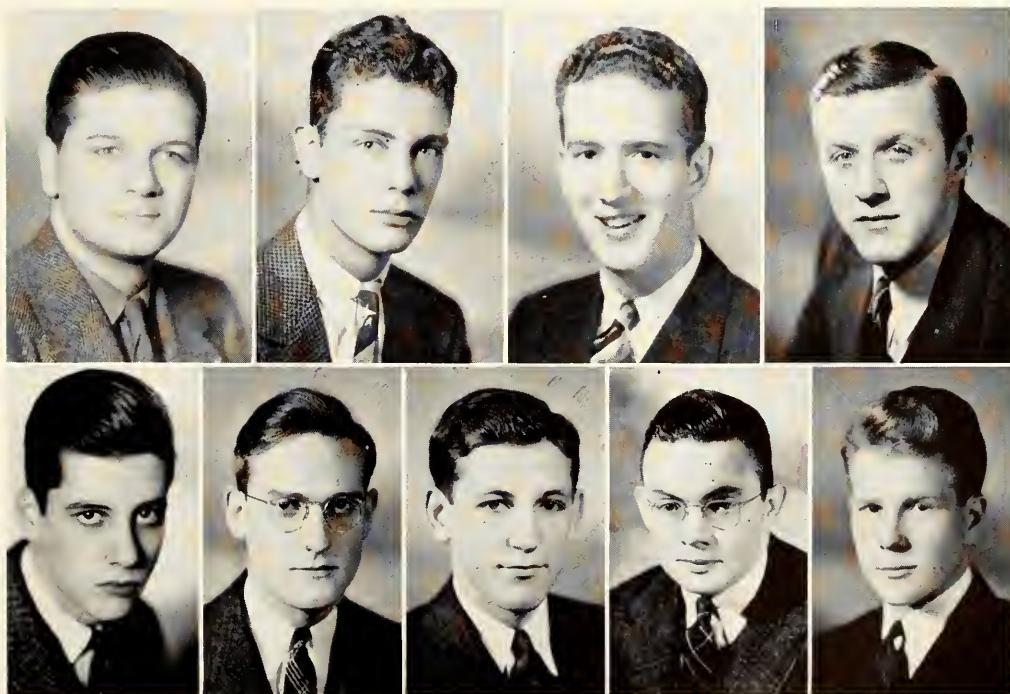

The emblem of Pi Delta Epsilon is a small triangular key, on the back of which is engraved the owner's name, college, and year of initiation.

The officers this year were: President, Charles Emmett Gaines and Robert Matthews, Vice President. Mr. Shearer acts as faculty adviser.

The Wabash Blue Key was organized in 1934 as an outgrowth of the national honorary fraternity which has existed on the campus since 1924.

Men outstanding in extra curricular activities are elected to this organization.

It attempts yearly to make some material improvement in the school.

The graduating members select eight juniors and two seniors to be new initiates.

This year's officers were:

President, Bergquist; V. President, Rasmussen, Secretary, Risley.

Blue Key

The Sphinx Club is an interfraternity honorary organization for men who are outstanding on the campus. Fraternity tie-ups are not considered in the choice of members and many independents are chosen.

Each year the Sphinx Club elects some individual to the Hall of Fame, Prof. Montgomery being honored last year.

They also give a cup for the best Homecoming decorations and annually award the lily, shovel, straw, and brown derby to deserving seniors on class day.

The officers this year were:

President, Jack Berns; V. President, Dick Cooney; Secretary Treasurer, Frank Kyle.

Omega is an honorary fraternal organization developed to promote the activities of independent men on the campus.

This last fall Omega acted as host at a smoker for the Freshmen and conducted a dance in February.

Omega is a very active organization, and only elect to membership those B.M.O.C. who have at least a one point five average.

The officers this year were: President, Starnes; V. President, Bergquist; Secretary Treasurer, Gineris.

Omega

Alpha Pi was founded for the purpose of correlating the various branches of science and to bring about a closer relationship of those students majoring in Division I.

The Scientists

Membership is limited to those men who maintain a one point average.

Eligible for membership are three-fourths of the Seniors in Division I, and two-thirds of the Juniors in that division, and the professors of Mathematics and Science. Two Sophomores who are outstanding and probable division majors are elected each year.

The officers this year were: President, Mastin; V. President, Reynolds; Secretary Treasurer, Huber.

Organized with the purpose of conducting discussion on national and international relations and public affairs, the International Relations Club holds meetings once a month in the old chapel and at various fraternity houses. The club is affiliated with the national organization of the same name.

Officers for the present year are: Bob Matthews, President; Don Purdy, Program Director; and Frank Fickes, Secretary.

At one of the meetings last fall the club actually attained a degree of the "international" when Heinz Probst, a German exchange student from DePauw, delivered a highly interesting speech on the contemporary situation in Germany.

Professor Trippet is the adviser of the club this year.

The History Club had the somewhat novel idea of having members of the organization give reports, either singly or in collaboration, on phases of history or contemporary events of general interest. These reports vary considerably, ranging from the history of American diplomacy with England to the Ku Klux Klan. After the reports, an informal discussion usually follows, led by the president of the club.

There are two officers: president, Bill Moore; secretary, Helfrich. The faculty sponsor is Doctor Gronert, and meetings are held every other week in the music room of the chapel.

History

The Speakers' Bureau is directed by Mr. Phillips and has just completed its ninth year.

Speakers

The Bureau has become quite popular, and has filled over eight hundred seventy-five engagements. This is not only important because of the opportunity for experience which it gives student speakers, but also because of its help to the College.

The speakers appear before service clubs, high schools, women's clubs, teachers' associations, men's clubs.

BOARD OF PUBLICATIONS

Row 1: Williams, Stone, Matthews, Gaines.

Row 2: Professors Lind, Ormes, Shearer.

Little is known about this body although they are the guiding hand of all college publications.

The student members are elected by the board from Pi Delt. The President of Pi Delt is automatically Student Chairman of the board. This year Chuck Gaines was Student Chairman.

Warren Shearer handles the finances of all publications. The board has done much toward the advancement of college publications and as progress must come in steps they hope to do much more next year.

We, of the yearbook staff, are very grateful for the favors they extended to us this past year.

There are many jokes, good and bad,
select few which are good enough to stand up, which comes under the heading of category. There is every reason to believe that the species known as "good" is now completely extinct. But, after all a joke is nothing more than a space-filler at best. In fact, it might be better for all concerned if the back pages of college "humor" publications were filled with recipes from the Boston Cook Book or vital statistics gleaned from the pages of the World Almanac. Jokes are preferred as space-filler merely because they are easy to acquire, they lend themselves to being clipped, and if part of the joke is omitted or a typographical error slips in no body notices it. Jokes are never really funny. They aren't meant to be funny. If a quip of some sort provokes laughter it has risen above the level of a joke—call it smart dialogue, a witicism, or a Benchley-ism, but never a joke.
It is a serious social blunder to ever refer to a joke as original.

"Wake up, John!" (More vigorous shaking ensues) "Get up, John!" (More vigorous shaking.) "What the devil do you want?"

Annual

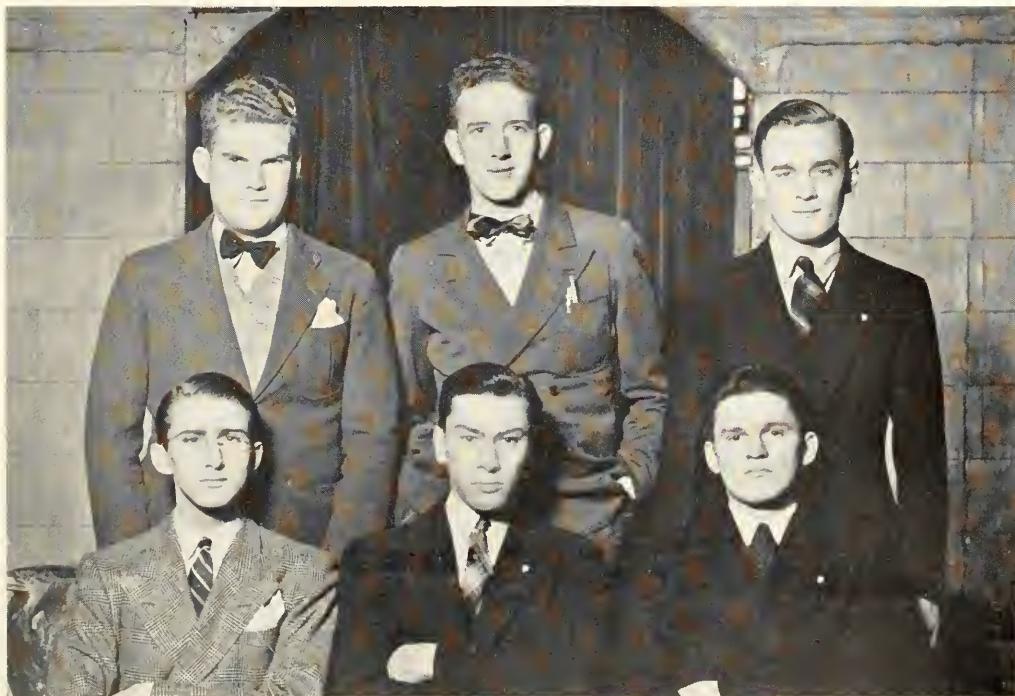

This year The Wabash News Bureau has helped the Publicity Department of the college to a great extent in publicizing "Wabash Events" which are of special interest. The Bureau was headed by Gaines the first semester and by Griffin the second semester. With the help of their staff of freshmen and sophomores they sent out a weekly bulletin to practically all of the newspapers in Indiana, Ohio, Illinois, Michigan, and Kentucky.

Whenever anything of more than passing importance happened, a special notice was sent out by the Associated Press to all the leading newspapers in the country.

Rickett, Hodnett.

At its first meeting in the fall the French Club elected the following officers: Don DeVoto, President; Carter Tharp, vice president; Robert Long, program chairman.

During the year several meetings took place, including the annual Christmas dinner at the home of the Leavenworths'. A high spot of the entertainment was Dwight Hamborsky's ever-popular ventriloquist act, put over with the aid of his little accomplice, Joe Doakes. Activities of the year will close, all members hope, with the annual outing to the country place of the good doctor and his wife.

The club met three times each semester on which occasions interesting programs were given. The most popular meetings of the year were those held at Christmas and in the late spring at the home of Professor Domroese.

This year the club's officers were: Walter Fertig, President; Jack Schleich, Vice President; Prof. Domroese, Secretary. The sponsors of the club were Professors Prell and Domroese.

The Wabash Sea-Goin' Band is possibly the best known of all Wabash activities. These men play at all our athletic contests and in the past have made their mark as leaders in parade.

It is always the band and their stirring tunes which moves the Caveman to higher heights as a rooter and enthusiast. During the basketball season several of the lads made names for themselves as potential Gene Krupa's as they jammed on some of the selections.

We are very proud of our band and proud of the men who have spent much of their time in developing it. Professor Montgomery is in charge and much credit is due him.

The Wabash Glee Club has completed another very successful year under the direction of Prof. George W. Horton. They have filled engagements to sing over Radio Stations WBAA in Lafayette, WIRE in Indianapolis, and WMAQ in Chicago. The Club sponsored a most enjoyable Varsity Show, which featured a battle of bands between the Collegians and the Ambassadors, and it inaugurated the interfraternity sing, which will probably become an annual affair.

The officers of the Glee Club for the year were: Francis Knebel, President; Herb Risley, Secretary; and Bill Jackson, Librarian.

The Wabash Collegians are finishing their third year of playing on the Wabash campus. The band has become increasingly popular in and around this section of Indiana, having played for many high school proms all over the state. The Collegians have played for fraternities and sororities on the Purdue, Butler, Indiana, and Wabash campuses. They have also played for many country clubs including those of Fort Wayne, Indianapolis, Muncie, and Frankfort.

The entire band is contracted for a six weeks' engagement in New York this coming summer.

Swing

Due to the success of the Wabash Collegians who, though they have been organized only two years, have had much more business than was anticipated, the Wabash Ambassadors were formed this year. In view of the fact that there is a lot of musical talent in the college which was unorganized up until last fall, Prof. Henry Montgomery, who is the director of the band, had no trouble in finding suitable material for it.

The Ambassadors are a nine piece orchestra who have a full set of instruments, stands, amplifying apparatus, and arrangements.

While formed primarily to play in a slightly lower price range than the Collegians, the Ambassadors have nevertheless held several important engagements this year. Among the most notable of these was the inaugural Sphinx Club dance of April 16.

Attesting to the Ambassadors' high rating among collegiate aggregations is the fact that they have been given a summer engagement playing aboard the Normandie.

The debate team for the year 1937-38 was the largest in many years as over two dozen men turned out for the squad.

howsa' dat?

Wranglers

This squad engaged in several tournaments this year, and they finally wound up with a better than average record. Among some of the colleges debated were DePauw and Earlham in the annual Wabash-Earlham-DePauw triangle meet. This meet resulted in a draw. Another meet was with a new triangle formed this year with Manchester and DePauw.

The most interesting affair of the season was a discussion debate over WJJD in Chicago between two of Wabash's ace debaters, Tharp and Gaines.

This year the Hays Debate Awards went to four men, Tharp, Gaines, Fertig, and Ristine.

Sponsored this year by the Ben Hur Life Insurance Company, the Crawfordsville Symphony Orchestra has become even more firmly established around Wabash. This year the orchestra has back with it again Mr. Lowell S. Love as conductor and already has presented one concert and sponsored one recital. The recital brought to Crawfordsville Mr. Bomar Cramer, young Indianapolis pianist, well known throughout the middle west. The second performance of the symphony, and the last of the present season, was given on April 26. At this concert something of an innovation was introduced in that the chapel organ, with Mr. Robert Stofer at the console, was played in connection with the orchestra.

The season of 1937-38 is the fifth consecutive season that the symphony orchestra has been in existence. Members of the organization come from the students and faculty of the college and high school and from the Indianapolis Symphony Orchestra. All rehearsals and concerts are given in the Wabash chapel.

Ludington, Chupp, Mefford, Davis, Koffend, Savidge, Cooney.

Officers of the Council are Dick Cooney, Dick Savidge, and John Koffend.

The Pan-Hellenic Council is made up of one representative from each fraternity who is appointed each year by his predecessor.

The Council tries to maintain a close relationship among the fraternities in their social activities. For the annual spring Pan-Hellenic dance last year the Council was fortunate enough to secure "The Mr. and Mrs. of Swing", Red Norvo and Mildred Bailey and their orchestra.

Johnny Hamp will play Saturday night, May 14. The Wabash Collegians will furnish music for the first night.

Since the independent men comprise such a large and active part of life on the Wabash campus, it is natural that an organization has been formed to further their wishes and interests in campus activities. The Association of Independent Men was formed to promote these functions which the fraternities perform for their members.

Forest Hall, built in 1833, and still owned by the college, is the recognized meeting place for all independent men. It stands at present on the west side of the campus.

Forest Hall might be called the only dormitory that Wabash affords its students. In it are housing accommodations for a dozen men, as well as a recreation room and modified lunch room. Here are held all the meetings of the independents, as well as Omega, an honorary organization. And between classes, almost anyone, student or professor, may be found in the soothing precincts of the "Canteen."

DO YOU REMEMBER ?

COLLEGIANS

The Wabash Collegians have really got something. They have had to limit their engagements this year so that they might not slight their school work. But they have had many more bids than they could handle.

These boys play all over the middle west. Their engagements often take them hundreds of miles away.

This summer the boys plan to play in New York City and to attend Columbia University summer school. They have organized their own local union part of a national and are under union rules. The band has three juniors and hopes to go farther next year. There was a lot of friendly rivalry this past year between the Collegians and the Ambassadors. And the Ambassadors plan to give the Big Band a run for their dances next year.

GOODRICH HALL

Wabash men of the second hundred years will have something new to be proud of, come next spring. Thanks to the liberal gift of $150,000 from ex-Governor James Putnam Goodrich, a handsome building to house the Chemistry, Physics, and Mathematics Departments will become a permanent addition to the quadrangle early in 1939.

Needless to say, the good doctors and professors of the science department are all in a dither at the present time, rushing about with classbook in one hand, a set of blueprints in the other, and radiating all the while a dazed but delightedly beatific and hopeful aura of good will. Even now honest workmen can be seen fondling their tools, spitting on their hands, and preparing to lay the foundation for the laying of the cornerstone, an event which will take place this coming commencement.

Goodrich Hall marks the largest single addition to the college since the erection of the chapel in 1928. It is a truly remarkable gift, and brings Mr. Goodrich's total contributions to the college to over $300,000.
